members to deliberate on the Constitution Drafting Committee report. Justice Udo Udoma was the Chairman of the Assembly.

The Assembly submitted a revised constitution to the Federal Military Government on August 29, 1978 and was dissolved on September 30, 1978.

Subsequently, elections were conducted from 7th July to 11th August 1979. Thereafter power was handed over at the federal level to Alhaji Shehu Shagari of the National Party of Nigeria (NPN) on October 1, 1979 when the Constitution of 1979 came into effect. The Second Republic became a reality.

The new constitution substituted the Parliamentary System of government with the Presidential System. Thus the Head of State was also the Head of Government and Commander in Chief of the Armed Forces. The State Executive Council was established for each State of the Federation to comprise the Governor, Deputy Governor and Commissioners. The civilian government of Alhaji Shehu Shagari was toppled on December 31, 1983. The Second Republic ended abruptly. The new military rule was headed by Major General Muhammadu Buhari also from the north. Buhari's government was overthrown in yet another coup led by Major General Ibrahim Babangida, from the middle belt, on August 27, 1985.

The Babangida Administration began the transition to civilian rule program that would lead to the emergence of constitutional government in 1993. The 1979 constitution was designed to usher in a new political order in the country. To this end a Constitution Review Committee (CRC) was set up in 1987 to examine the provisions of
